

7 Aug 2015

The 5 bias cards

I have published version .01 of a slideshow on the ripose.org web site that deals with, what in my opinion constitutes, the 5 bias cards some people play during a discussion (or in an argument) in order to sidetrack or hijack a meeting's issue or agenda item. One or more of these cards are often used to bully or belittle the other person or group into submission and could cause the meeting to end in a stalemate at best or a violent confrontation at worst. At the end of my presentation, I offer a solution as to what one needs to have in order to overcome the effects of any such card being played. www.ripose.org/5bc.

I still have more work to add to it (links and probably audio) and will do so once I learn how to imbed a few more JavaScript constructs into a web page.

As always I would appreciate any feedback and hope that no one will play the really biased cards against me.

Charles Richter

Principal information architect
Ripose Pty Limited