

19 Sep 2015

The C-Types' ready reckoner

In my article '5 strategies to becoming an information architect' I mentioned I would be providing the C-type operatives with a ready reckoner guide to selecting the Ripose Technique together with the appropriate Ripose architect to unambiguously and rapidly reduce the complex evolving problem called the 'business' into a series of simple static solutions.

I will be releasing the ready reckoner in a series of 8 articles in order not to overwhelm anyone with too much information.

Ready reckoner:

Part 1 – We know there is a problem, now what can we do about it?

Part 2 – How can you help yourself?

Part 3 – How can a grade 1 information architect assist?

Part 4 – How can a grade 2 information architect assist?

Part 5 – How can a grade 3 information architect assist?

Part 6 – How can a grade 4 information architect assist?

Part 7 – How can a grade 5 information architect assist?

Part 8 – How can a grade 6 information architect assist?

My first article will introduce the notion that in order to fully comprehend the need for the next step, perhaps the C-type needs to take a closer look at themselves and how they relate to others.

As I am not a physiologist, I have had to develop an approach which I think works best. I called that work 'Prysms'. For more detail on why I named this approach thusly, please follow this link.

So if you are still interested and willing to proceed, please go to Part 1.

If you are not interested, then thank you for your time and patience and I wish you and your enterprise all the best for the future.

Charles Meyer Richter
Principal information architect
Ripose Pty Limited